HOLLYWOOD MOMS

"We love girl time," Frankel tells Us.

Keeping It Real

» Bethenny Frankel says daughter Bryn, 13, has her "moments" when it comes to following in her entrepreneurial footsteps — but she's not putting any pressure on the teen. "Bryn is creative and free. I don't want her to be like me," the Business is Personal: The Truth About What it Takes to Be Successful While Staying True to Yourself author, 52, tells Us. "I like her not [worrying] about a goal set." Here, Frankel updates Us on life with her girl.

Q: What's Bryn been up to lately?
We had an amazing time at the Taylor Swift concert [and] then we gave a mother and daughter in need tickets to Taylor's show in Boston. She says "dismissal" is her favorite subject, but she loves science, art and sports. She's [also] playing lacrosse and scored three goals in one game!

Q: What are some of your favorite activities to do together?

We love rituals and creating memories with every holiday and season. From vegetable picking to surfing to wakeboarding and snowboarding, we do a lot together.

Q: What's your biggest parenting challenge right now?

We're right "be-tween" childhood and adulthood, where they think they know everything, but your job is to protect them from the world and themselves. I love parenting!

Q: Has Bryn watched any of your previous TV projects?

She's watched some of the Housewives. I think she finds it entertaining but really hates it for me.

Feed them without holding your breath.

ZOË & CHANNING

Setting the Pace

➔ This summer marks two years since Zoë Kravitz and Channing Tatum started dating, but neither is in a rush to take the next step. "They've both been there, done that, and it didn't work out, so there are no plans for an engagement," an insider tells Us of Kravitz, 34, and Tatum, 43. (The actress divorced Karl Glusman in 2021; the Magic Mike star's marriage to Jenna Dewan ended in 2018.) "It also makes them happier to just let things unfold organically," adds a source. "They're perfectly happy with where things are and cherish [their] special relationship."

PETE & CHASE

Super Solid

➔ Things are heating up between Pete Davidson and Chase Sui Wonders. "Pete couldn't be happier with Chase. They spend a lot of their free time together and are constantly laughing, joking around and just having fun," an insider tells Us, adding that despite their celeb status, the comedian, 29, and his Bupkis costar, 27 — who were first linked in December — are still a normal couple. "They go out for nice dinners, but they're just as happy staying in," the insider continues. "Pete feels like he's on cloud nine."

LEE & MARY ANNE

Sea of Love

➔ Below Deck's Captain Lee Rosbach admits that his wife of 48 years, Mary Anne, is truly his better half. "She's my anchor. She's the one that keeps me grounded," Lee, 73, told Us while promoting his partnership with Dramamine. "If she sees me veering off the wrong way, we sit down and talk, and she keeps me headed on the — not the straight and narrow because we still like to have a good time — but I don't do anything real drastic!"

Newlywed Bliss

Marriage looks good on Colton Underwood, 31, and Jordan C. Brown! "They're living their best lives," an insider tells Us of the duo, who wed on May 13. "Colton feels so blessed to have found his soulmate and can't wait for their future together. It's really a dream come true."

PRINCE HARRY

Fighting Back

The Duke of Sussex didn't hold back during his day in court

On June 6, Prince Harry took the stand in his phone hacking case against a British newspaper. Although the former royal, 38, has no regrets about bringing the matter to court, an insider tells Us that it wasn't easy on him. "It's been extremely draining and nerve-racking," says the insider. "But Harry's determination to speak up against what he claims was plain illegality is what pushed him through and kept him focused." During his time on the stand, Harry revealed deeply personal info, alleging that phone hacking planted "seeds of distrust" between him and Prince William, led to his 2010 breakup from Chelsy Davy and left him feeling as if he "couldn't trust anybody" at a young age. "Harry says he'll share whatever he must to bring justice. He's willing to risk it all in that regard," says the insider. "Sharing intimate details about his past [relationships], as well as bringing up difficulties with his brother, was far from comfortable... but nothing was off-limits." So far, the royal family has opted not to engage or comment on the case — "everyone knows King Charles in particular didn't think it worthwhile for Harry to take on the press," explains the source — but Harry has had wife Meghan Markle, 41, in his corner. "She's been his rock," says the insider. "She's proud of him for having the strength and courage to do the right thing."

"Harry's hell-bent on winning this case, no matter what," says an insider.

WENDY WILLIAMS

Is She OK?

Fears for Wendy Williams are mounting. On June 5, the talk show host's son, Kevin Hunter Jr., 22, spoke out, revealing new concerns that his mother — who's currently in a treatment facility — is being "taken advantage of" amid her ongoing alleged substance abuse issues. According to a source, his worries are likely warranted. "As of last year, Wendy wasn't doing well. She didn't seem like herself, and although it's unknown what exactly is going on, her management doesn't seem to be doing what's best for her," the source tells Us, explaining that Williams, 58, had planned to open a restaurant with her manager and also launch a podcast — neither of which has happened. "Wendy did interviews with the media last year and everybody was shocked by what they saw. She was incoherent at times and didn't seem to understand the lines of questioning," the source continues. "People aren't surprised her son is concerned."

"I know there are all sorts of things happening that I know in her right mind she would never agree to," Williams' son (inset) recently said.

KEEPING UP WITH US

● Did Kelis' Milkshake bring Bill Murray to the yard? After sparking rumors of a possible romance with the actor, the singer (above) played it coy when asked by a fan to address the buzz, telling them, "No babe, I wouldn't bother at all."

● A new role: Orange Is the New Black alum Uzo Aduba is expecting her first child with husband Robert Sweeting.

● Country singer Jimmie Allen has been dropped by his record label after a second sexual assault lawsuit was filed against him. (Allen has denied the allegations from the first lawsuit.)

● Zayn who? Selena Gomez posted a TikTok on June 8 revealing her relationship status to a group of soccer players: "I'm single. I'm just a little high-maintenance. But I'll love you soooo much!"

● End of an era: Pat Sajak is leaving Wheel of Fortune after more than four decades. "I've decided that our 41st season... will be my last," the host said in a statement. "It's been a wonderful ride."

● Adding to his Entourage! On June 8, Adrian Grenier shared that he and wife Jordan Roemmele Grenier recently welcomed a son named Seiko.

Surprise Wedding

» Naomi Watts is known for keeping her personal life under wraps, but on June 10, the actress, 54, took to Instagram to confirm that she and beau Billy Crudup, also 54, had quietly wed. "They wanted to keep it low-key and have this moment to themselves, and they pulled it off beautifully," an insider tells Us, calling the couple's nuptials "stress-free" and "spur-of-the-moment." Adds the insider: "A big A-list wedding just didn't seem right; they never wanted that. Instead, they married at the Manhattan courthouse, and it was so special." Afterward, Watts and Crudup kept it casual. "They actually went to a friend's birthday party in their wedding attire," notes the insider. "There were a lot of congratulations going on, that's for sure."

After getting engaged in April, "Naomi and Billy were ready for this," shares an insider.

KEEPING UP WITH US

● It's about time! On June 7, Tupac Shakur (above) received a posthumous star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame — 26 years after his death. "His heavenly star will shine a little brighter today," the rapper's sister Sekyiwa "Set" Shakur said of the honor.

● Jana Kramer is expecting her first child with fiancé Allan Russell. "I didn't think it would ever happen again," said the country singer, who's already mom to two kids from her previous marriage.

● On June 6, Shannen Doherty revealed that her breast cancer has spread to her brain. "My fear is obvious," she said in an Instagram post, which also included a video of her receiving radiation therapy.

● A low note: Carly Pearce and Riley King have called it quits after two years of dating. "Things didn't work out," shared King.

● Kathy Hilton is exiting RHOAH after two years but promises fans "it's going to be great" without her.

● The witches are back! Hocus Pocus 3 is officially in development, Walt Disney Pictures president Sean Bailey confirmed.

"Amber has no plans to move back to the U.S. She is happy to be away at the moment," says a source.

AMBER HEARD

Her Next Chapter

It's been a little over a year since Amber Heard lost her defamation trial against ex-husband Johnny Depp. But since relocating to Spain with her daughter, Oonagh, 2, the Aquaman star is thriving. "Amber is living her best life," a source tells Us, explaining that Heard, 37, felt like "a pariah" after the high-profile court battle came to an end. "The trial was watercooler conversation, and the energy around it was so intense," explains the source. "She felt like people were always talking about her and just needed to get away." Since doing so, the actress "has been so much happier," says the source. "She's still recovering from the trauma of the trial, but it's been so healthy to get away from all the noise." Heard has even gotten back to work: On June 24, her new film, In the Fire, will premiere at the Taormina Film Festival in Italy. "Amber feels... that she can potentially have a Hollywood comeback in the future," teases the source. "Life is good right now."

Sweet Escape

➤ The countdown to baby has officially begun for Lindsay Lohan and Bader Shammas! "They wanted to spend some quality time together before the baby is born, so they recently went on a weeklong babymoon to Oman," a source tells Us, noting that Lohan, 36 — who's due in late July — had never been to the country and always wanted to visit. "Bader planned everything to make it special for Lindsay. They had a picnic and went to restaurants she wanted to go to." The romantic getaway was exactly what the couple needed. Adds the source: "They were both so relaxed when they came back."

"They're having a good time together," says a second insider.

GIGI & LEO

Back On?

It's been nearly four months since Leonardo DiCaprio and Gigi Hadid's romance officially fizzled out. But the pair — who have been linked several times since the split — sparked rumors of a reconciliation on June 6 when they were spotted at the same London restaurant, China Tang, where the actor was dining with his father and stepmom. (The two are also rumored to both be staying at the Chiltern Firehouse.) "Leo and Gigi have a friendly, no strings 'situationship' right now," an insider tells Us. "They're both allowed to live their own lives, date other people and not be tied down." As Us previously reported, when DiCaprio, 48, and Hadid, 28, first got together in September, the attraction between them was "white hot." But as time went on, their busy lives and careers proved to be too much. "Gigi and Leo travel so often it's best for them to keep their relationship open and fluid," the insider says of their current arrangement. "Neither of them wants to settle down at the moment."

GLORY DAYS

A happier-than-ever Jennifer Aniston is embracing the aging process (hello, gray hair!) and looking forward to whatever comes next BY JAIME HARKIN

On June 2, Jennifer Aniston announced the latest launch from her haircare line, LolaVie, with a cute promo video on Instagram. Fans were thrilled to see the 54-year-old actress rocking her natural gray roots in the clip and commended her for keeping it real. “Refreshing,” gushed one follower, while another applauded her for “leading the way on gray.” Just a few days later, Aniston revealed she’s partnered up with the functional fitness brand Pvolve and has moved away from the punishing fitness routines of her past in favor of a more gentle approach to wellness.

It’s clearly a new era for Aniston. “I’m in better shape than I was in my 20s,” she recently told British Vogue. “I feel better in mind, body and spirit. It’s all 100 percent better.” With the third season of her hit Apple TV+ series,

The Morning Show, set to premiere this fall and a potential move to the $14.8 million Montecito, Calif., mansion she bought in September, the star “is in a great place,” says a source. “She’s happy, healthy and fulfilled by her career, family and friends. Jen's been through a lot, but she feels blessed to be thriving personally and professionally."

BIG CHANGES

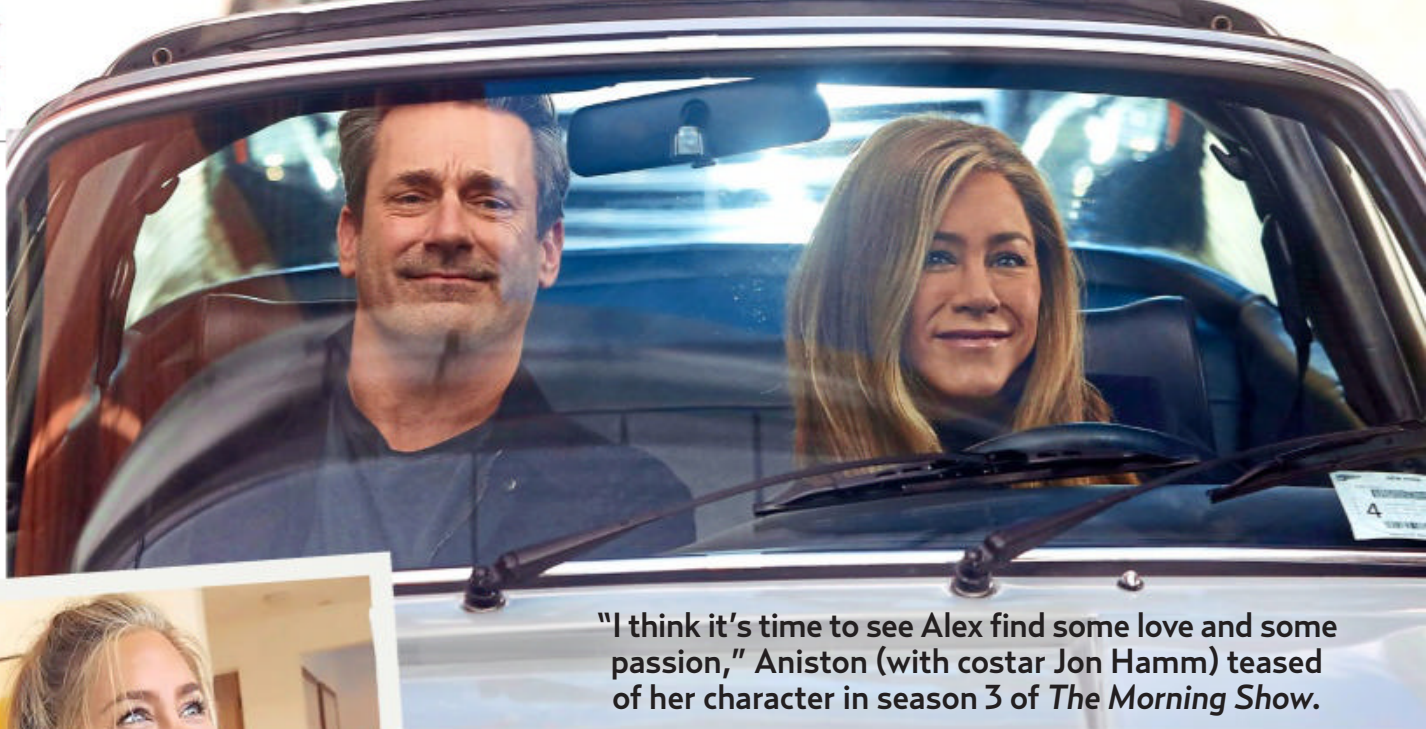

For decades, Aniston swore by a grueling exercise regimen and consistently pushed herself past her limit. "It used to be pounding, pounding, pounding. You had to get 45 minutes to an hour of cardio; otherwise, you weren't getting a workout," she said. Aniston was left exhausted and injured. "I just burnt out and broke my body," the star revealed, adding that she's sworn off Crossfit ("too aggressive," she explained) and boxing, noting, "I had a great time, but it was really hard on my wrists."

Now she's all about mindful self-care. She does

"Love your silver sparkles," a fan commented on Aniston's June 2 Insta post.

10- to 20-minute Pvolve classes focusing on low-impact resistance training. "After a workout, I don't feel insane fatigue or broken or in pain," the Friends alum shared. According to a second source, Aniston tries to work out five days a week. "She also meditates," adds the source, "and loves hikes with her dogs."

"I think it's time to see Alex find some love and some passion," Aniston (with costar Jon Hamm) teased of her character in season 3 of The Morning Show.

Her diet is healthy, not restrictive. "Jen's meals are rich in protein with a healthy amount of carbs, and she also indulges in treats and cheat days," says the source. "If she wants to enjoy a dirty martini or tequila, she'll splurge. It's no big deal." The source notes she doesn't count calories, adding that Aniston "feels really empowered and is looking at beauty from the inside out."

Unlike some of her Hollywood peers, Aniston shies away from extreme anti-aging plastic surgery treatments. "Sure, she's had subtle help here and there and occasional touch-ups," explains the second source, "but nothing too intense or over the top. She's way more interested in natural, organic beauty methods." Adds the first source: "Jen feels fine about getting older. For her, it's about being as healthy and happy

HALLE BERRY

Berry's longtime trainer told Us the 56-year-old's athleticism blows him away: "She can outrun and outlift and out-train most people."

GABRIELLE UNION

The Being Mary Jane actress, 50, has said her "anti-aging secret weapon" is drinking a gallon of water a day. "It's made a tremendous difference."

as she can be."

During a typical day, she wakes up early, makes time for some exercise or yoga and hangs out with her dogs. Then it's off to work on The Morning Show (she's also an exec producer on the series alongside her costar Reese Witherspoon). "Jen still has goals when it comes to her acting career," says the second source. "She'd love to get her hands on an Oscar-worthy script, but overall she has a go-with-the-flow attitude about it."

GETTING CANDID

Aniston's become less guarded in recent years. In November, she opened up for the first time about struggling to conceive in her late 30s and 40s. "It was a challenging road for me, the baby-making road," she told Allure. "It was really hard. I was going through IVF, drinking Chinese teas, you name it." Aniston admitted that in telling her story, she felt like she was "coming out of hibernation," adding, "I don't have anything to hide at this point." The first source says she felt a weight lifted off her shoulders after finally setting the record straight: "Fans have been curious, and she felt like letting them know."

She doesn't care about what people think as much as she used to — especially regarding her love life. Back in 2008, the twice-divorced star insisted the "whole 'Poor lonely Jen'" narrative was off-base following her high-profile split from ex-husband Brad Pitt three years earlier. She's dating, but isn't in a rush to find someone. "In her gut, Jen believes she'll eventually meet the right person," shares the second source. "But she's not going to beat herself up if it doesn't happen. She's perfectly fine on her own!"

JENNIFER LOPEZ

"I'm always evolving and looking for things that keep me excited and motivated," Lopez, 53, told Us. "I'm not afraid to challenge myself."

TRACEE ELLIS ROSS

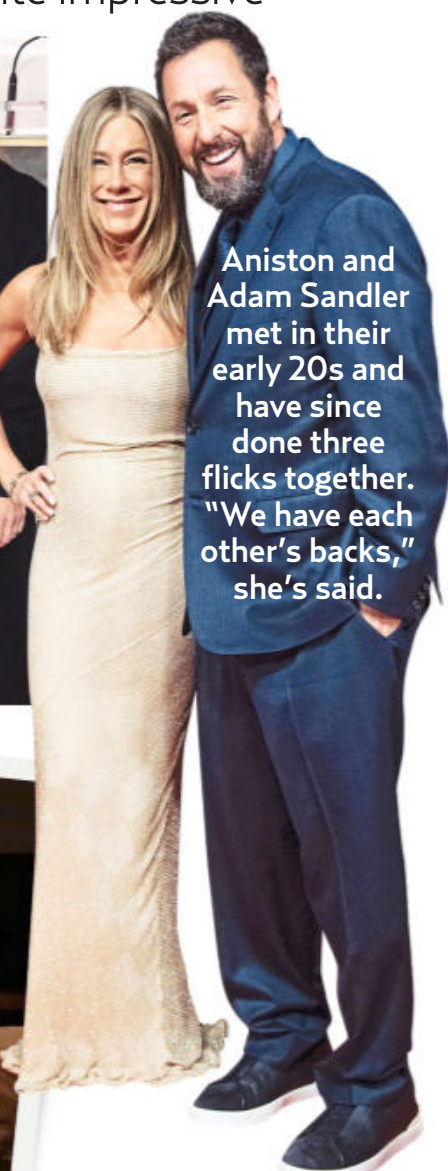

"I think I'm the sexiest I've ever been," said Ross after turning 50 in October. "I feel fantastic, and I feel like the world is my oyster."

Friends 'Til the End

From former costars to former husbands, Aniston's squad is quite impressive

Courteney Cox and Lisa Kudrow have been her besties since Friends began in 1994. (Aniston is godmother to Cox's 19-year-old daughter, Coco.)

Aniston and Adam Sandler met in their early 20s and have since done three flicks together. "We have each other's backs," she's said.

#fakesgiving

Very VERY thankful for these friends and these nights.

"She's literally one of the funniest people I've ever met," says Reese Witherspoon of her longtime pal.

A source says Aniston is still on "good terms" with ex-husband Justin Theroux (they split in 2018; he attended her "Friendsgiving" party in 2019).

"Jen's friendship circle is super loyal," says a source of the star (with Rita Wilson, Jason Bateman's wife Amanda Anka, hairstylist Chris McMillan and Laura Dern in 2019).

Hilary Swank

It wasn't easy," Swank wrote in an April 9 Instagram post announcing the birth of her twins, "but boy (and girl!) was it worth it." Settling into life at home with husband Philip Schneider (the Oscar-winning star, 48, and the entrepreneur tied the knot in August 2018) and their two little ones has been an adjustment. "Hilary and Philip are ecstatic but exhausted," shares an insider. "While Hilary has some help, she has a type A personality and wants to do everything herself." A second insider says motherhood has "transformed Hilary's perspective on everything," adding, "She used to be so focused on her career, now it's all about her family."

Swank "is on cloud nine," an insider says.

"It's been a joyous time for Kaley," shares a source.

Kaley Cuoco

Motherhood sure looks good on the Based on a True Story star. "Kaley has taken to parenthood just beautifully," a source told Us in April. "She's in heaven, and each day just gets better and better." Cuoco, 37, and her boyfriend of just over a year, Ozark's Tom Pelphrey, 40, welcomed Matilda on March 30. Luckily for the happy couple, their daughter has been a stellar baby. "She giggles all the time," says the source, adding that the newborn "brings joy to everyone around her and has a very charismatic personality." (Cuoco herself has predicted Matilda is destined for a life in showbiz. "It's in her genes!" she's said.) Cuoco and Pelphrey are already talking about baby No. 2. "They will definitely have another down the line; it's just a case of when," says a second source. "For now, Kaley's savoring her time with Matilda and counting her blessings to be raising this beautiful baby."

CLUB

From precious moments to shifting priorities, Us shares how these Hollywood stars are adjusting to motherhood BY JAIME HARKIN

"I will never be the same again," Palmer has said.

Keke Palmer

Back in March, Palmer gave her fans an update on parenthood via Instagram, calling it her "greatest gig" and revealing she's "learning how to balance it all and looking forward to discovering this new person I am becoming." The 29-year-old Nope star gave birth to Leodis (nicknamed "Leo") — her first child with her fitness instructor boyfriend of nearly two years,

Darius Jackson — on Feb. 25. "Keke is blissfully happy," says an insider. "Leo's got a lively personality, and he keeps Keke and Darius on their toes." Of course, there are some challenges for the new mom, who released her new album, Big Boss, on May 12: "The sleepless nights have been a struggle," says the insider, "but Darius has been a huge help, and Leo is just a joy."

Paris Hilton

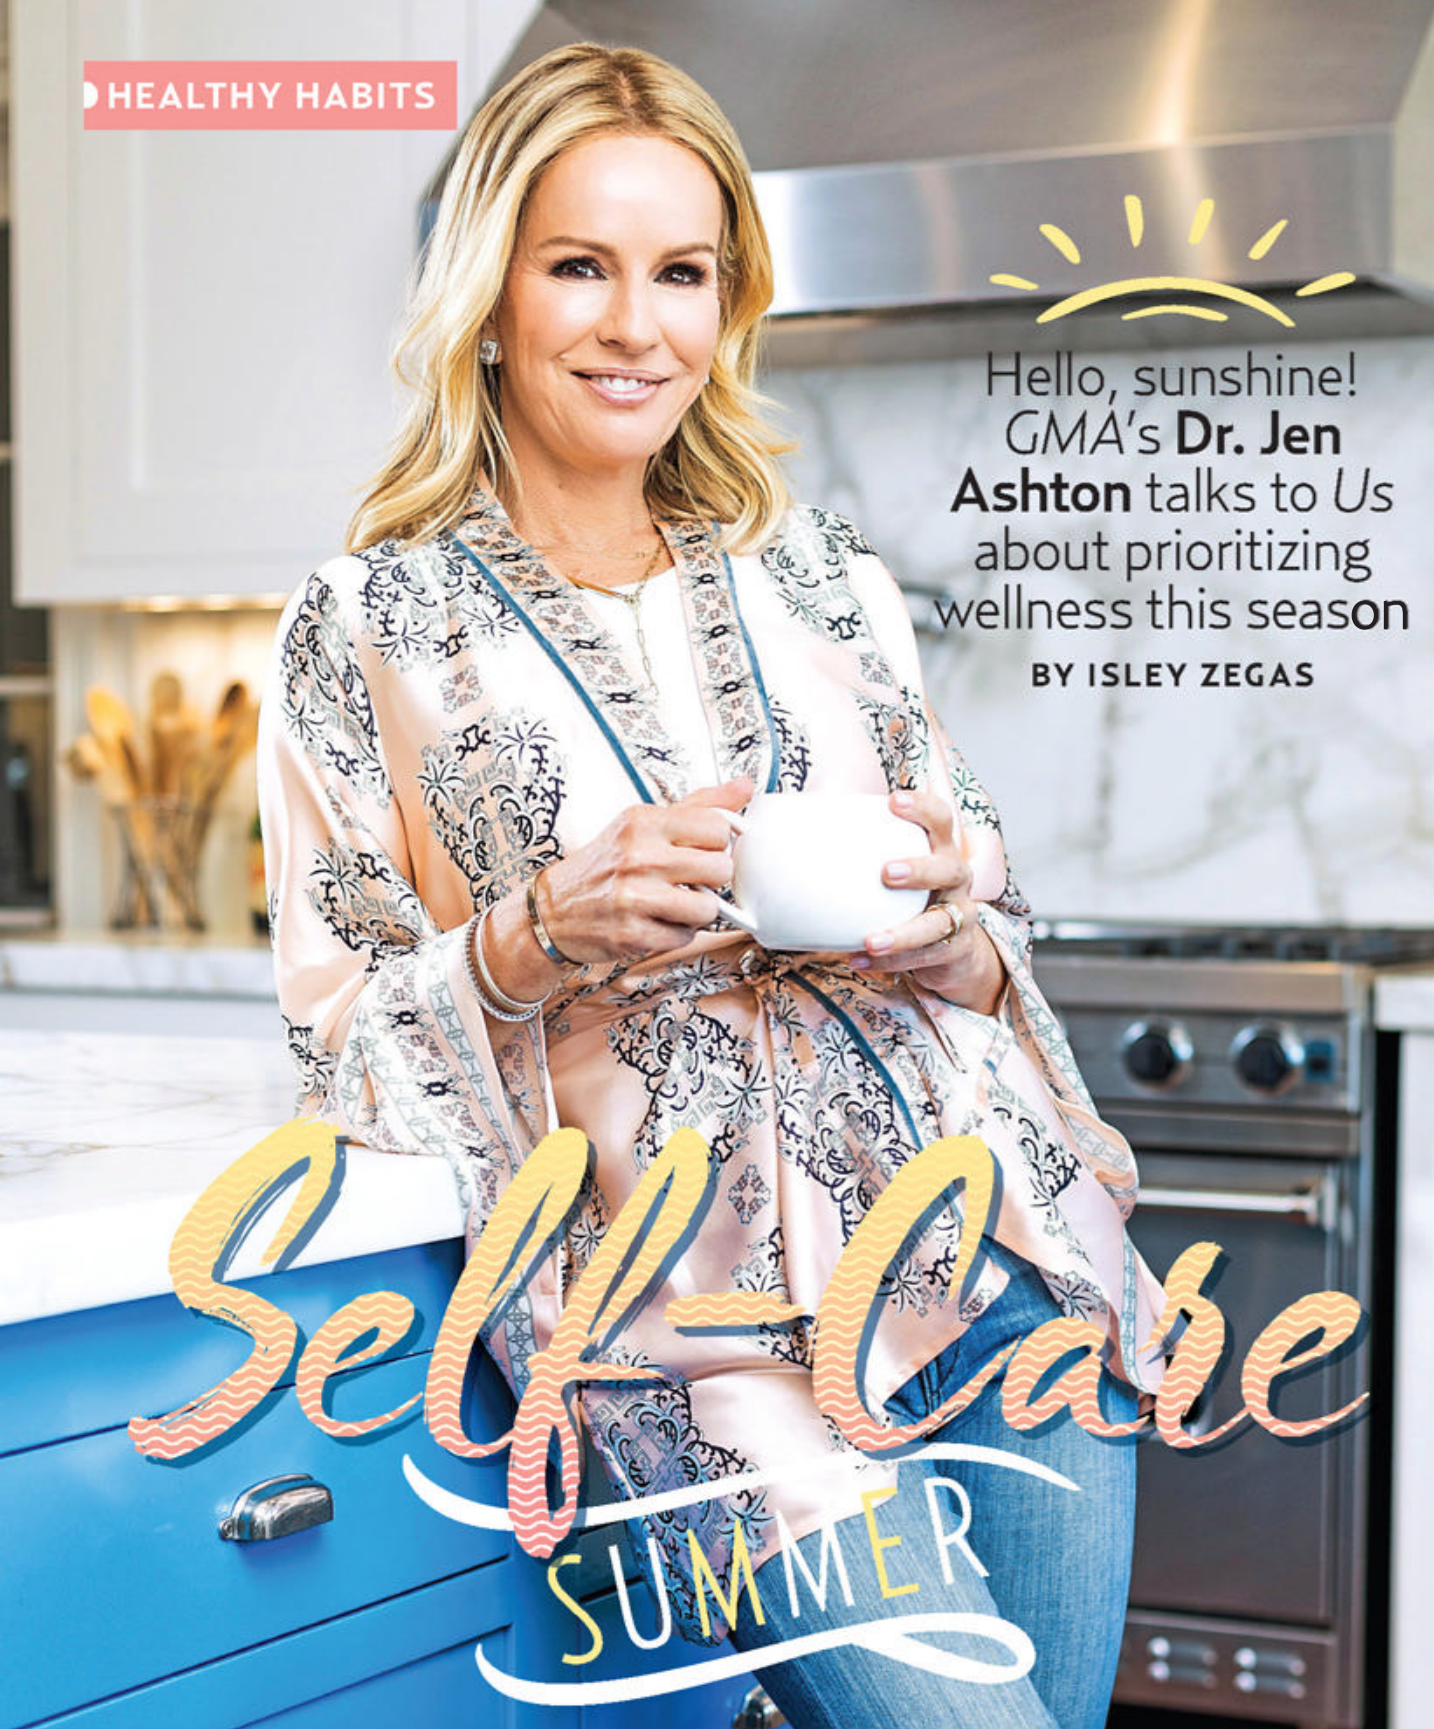

Hilton waited a long time to fulfill her dream of having children, and she's been enjoying every minute of motherhood since welcoming son Phoenix via surrogate on Jan. 24 with her husband of 19 months, Carter Reum. "Paris talked about wanting a baby for so many years," says a source. "Now that Phoenix is here, she's over the moon." Despite her intense work schedule, 42-year-old Hilton is as hands-on as possible. "One of the things that makes Paris so successful is that she really is able to do it all," says a second source. "She's a present mom but also continues to be the entrepreneur she's always been. She's living her dream and is happier than ever."

Reum recently brought Phoenix to watch mom rehearse a DJ set.

How about getting enough water?

JA: Hydration is important for your skin, kidneys and brain function. Oftentimes, dehydration presents as hunger: You might think you're hungry, but in reality, you're really just dehydrated!

How much of a role do diet and fitness play in overall well-being?

JA: Huge. I cannot over-emphasize this enough. It's the foundation of how we feel. Eat from the farm more than the factory, eat less than you want to and get some form of exercise every single day.

What's your favorite healthy summer meal?

JA: A salad with corn, avocado, chickpeas, tofu, tomatoes and onion.

Are you a big believer in practices like meditation to relax and unwind?

JA: Absolutely! I practice transcendental meditation almost every day for 15 to 20 minutes. It makes me feel more efficient and positive, and it increases my sense of calm.

Any other tips to keep in mind this season?

JA: Look to cut sugar in cocktails, desserts and condiments any way you can... [it's] not good for your skin or waistline. Also, use sunscreen on your face, neck and hands first thing in the morning and reapply every two hours, regardless of your skin color. It'll reduce premature aging from sun damage.

US

Summer is synonymous with fun, but sometimes it can be hard to feel your best this time of year. "Ironically, some of the things we often do more of are not the most ideal for our health and wellness. We might eat or drink too much and neglect some of the behaviors that keep us on track," says ABC's chief medical correspondent and board-certified ob-gyn Dr. Jen Ashton, 54, urging folks not to be too hard on themselves. "It's easy to feel frustrated, but little tweaks can yield big dividends if you stick with it," she notes. "It's not about extremes; it's about achieving [results] that [are] sustainable." Here, Dr. Ashton tells Us more about taking care of yourself in the months ahead.

What's the simplest way to improve your overall wellness this summer?

JA: Focus on the trifecta of good health: sleep, eating and movement. Your body needs consistent rest every night (seven to nine hours), clean fuel for energy and activity that works on cardio, strength, balance and flexibility.

CONSIDER COLOR

Looking for an inexpensive fix? "A coat of paint [will] make a big impact in a kitchen, especially if the cabinets or current wall treatments are dated," Jonathan Scott — who stars in HGTV's Celebrity IOU with his twin brother, Drew Scott — tells Us. "It does require your time and patience — those investments will be totally worth it, though, when you wake up and smell the coffee from the comfort of a brand-new space."

FIND YOUR ZONE

"A statement-making update can instantly refresh a kitchen," notes Drew, who suggests painting your island a different color, installing patterned backsplash tile or using self-adhesive wallpaper to create an accent wall. "Going bold in a thoughtfully chosen area can help the space feel fresh without having to replace everything else."

BRIGHTEN THINGS UP

A little bit of light can make a huge difference. "Nothing says 'blah' like a dark, dreary kitchen. Make sure your fixtures aren't holding you back by installing pendants, chandeliers, under-cabinet strips or other solutions that keep it feeling bright and welcoming," says Jonathan. "Consider your natural lighting too and pick up curtains that highlight — not block — the sun."

MAKE STORAGE STYLISH

When it comes to cleaning up your cooking space, decluttering is a must. "Throw out or donate items you don't need and purchase storage solutions that'll keep the junk from piling up," explains Jonathan, urging readers to check out drewandjonathan.com for some fun ideas. "Things like matching spice containers, catchall trays, wall-mount knife and key racks, and drawer and cabinet organizers can go a long way."

SUCCESS

Property Brothers' Drew and Jonathan Scott share tips with Us to give your kitchen an easy makeover

TAKE BABY STEPS

"If you don't have the budget for bigger purchases like appliances or countertops, try updating your smaller decor pieces," says Drew. "For example, replace your mismatched utensil holders, exposed dishware, old dish towels and dated vases with fresher versions in complementing color schemes. It's a simple swap, but one that can make a noticeable difference."

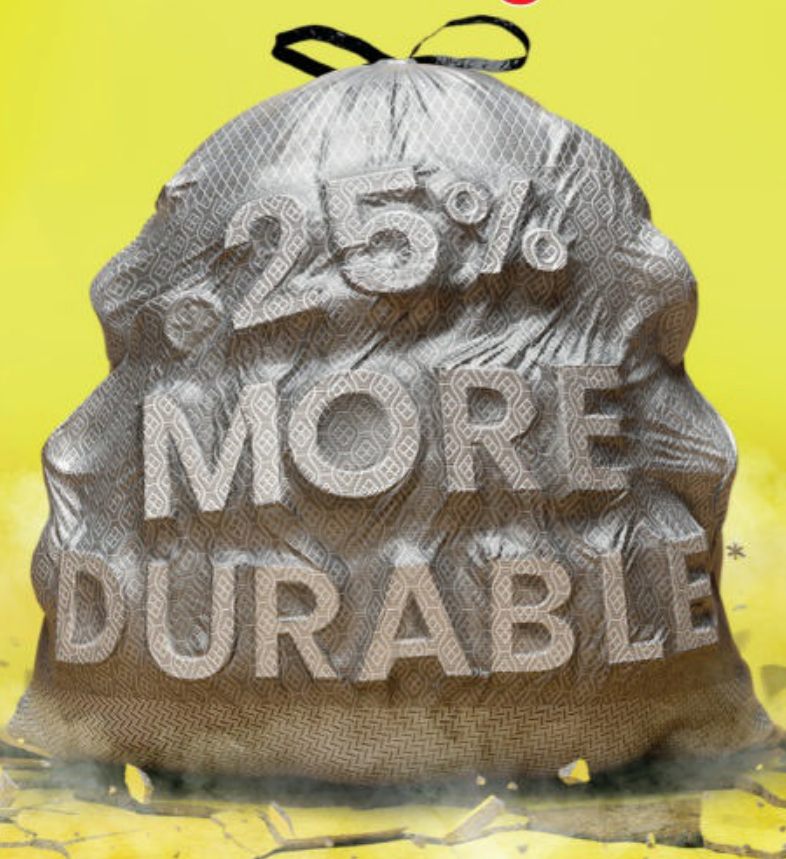

SHOP AROUND

You don't need to break the bank on new furniture: "Get creative — swing by the thrift stores in your neighborhood, check out online resellers, or refinish a piece you already have," suggests Drew. "At the end of the day, it's all about balance. If you pick up a table or chairs secondhand, that'll leave more room in the budget for those new barstools you've been drooling over on Pinterest."

Andi's Bridal Style Secrets

Bachelorette alum Andi Dorfman Hart dishes on her wedding weekend wardrobe

For the rehearsal dinner that kicked off the festivities, the author (with mom Patti, right) chose an "elegant with a flare" maxi by KYHA. "My favorite part was the sleeves," she says.

"I wanted something timeless so I could look back in a decade and still love it," she says of the ceremony gown. Designer Karen Sabag "absolutely nailed it!"

The sequins reception dress by Leah Da Gloria "made me feel like I was in a James Bond film," Hart raves. Naturally, groom Blaine wore a white dinner jacket "to match."

"I knew I wanted a short lace dress for the afterparty," the mega-influencer shares. "I saw a stunning long gown by Dana Harel and she made a mini for me! It was the perfect finale."

TV • MOVIES • MUSIC • AND MORE!

If you've ever watched Sebastian Maniscalco's stand-up, you know he tends to put a comedic spin on his relationship with his Italian immigrant dad, Salvatore. In About My Father (in theaters now), Maniscalco plays himself as he introduces his pops (portrayed by Robert De Niro) to meet the cultured family of his girlfriend (Leslie Bibb) — and naturally, hilarity ensues. Here, the comedian talks to Us about the film.

Q: What can you tell Us about the movie? Is it inspired by actual events?

I go to North Carolina every year during the 4th of July to hang out with my wife's side of the family. This is where the idea was spawned: I felt like a fish out of water — country club living [is] not how I grew up. The relationship with my father, there's hints of that truth in the film, but my father never met my wife's family in that way.

Q: What did your dad think about De Niro portraying him?

We're not really positive people, so when I first told him, he said, "Yeah, right." But then, when Robert called my father and said, "I'd like you to come to Oklahoma where I'm filming a movie because I want you to help me analyze this script and teach me some Italian and how you behave," he started to sense this was happening. It [was] a surreal experience.

Q: What do you hope fans take away from the film?

I grew up in the '70s with a real tight-knit family where we had dinner together and we talked. You go out now and see four people on iPads at dinner. There's no real human connection. I hope people leave the theater thinking we should get back to more family and not [be] so isolated in our phones.

"I'm so happy my parents are alive to witness this," Maniscalco says of the film.

Family Matters

Sebastian Maniscalco spills on his star-studded comedy, About My Father

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING

Marissa Jaret Winokur talks to Us about Bupkis

Marissa Jaret Winokur is just one of the many guest stars serving up laughs on Peacock's Bupkis, a semi-autobiographical series based on Pete Davidson's life. Here, the actress dishes on the comedy. SWEET EMOTION Bupkis follows the SNL alum "dealing with fame and family," Winokur explains. But there's more to the story: "You fall in love with Pete — his journey, his heart [and] his rawness to be funny and break your heart." SUCH CHARACTERS Portraying Lori, a low-key friend of Pete's mom, allowed Winokur to show some range in her acting ("It was fun because every time I play a [New Yorker], I'm a little over the top"). However, witnessing the work of costars like Joe Pesci, Edie Falco and Ray Romano was the icing on the cake. "It feels like a fever dream," the Hairspray star admits. "It's the most incredible cast."

No More Mr. Nice Guy

Seann William Scott takes on his darkest role yet in his new film, The Wrath of Becky

In The Wrath of Becky (available on demand and digital June 16), Seann William Scott's Darryl Jr. faces off with a teenager (Lulu Wilson) seeking revenge for the kidnapping of her dog — and other things. Here, the actor opens up about the Becky sequel. ACTING THE PART On top of the script being "fantastic," Scott says he signed on for the thriller for the chance to play a villain. "It was an opportunity to do something pretty different than what I've done throughout my career," he explains.

The American Pie alum may opt for more dramas in the future, too. "It was easier to tap into this kind of character than most comedies," Scott says, though he's quick to note that the only thing he and Darryl Jr. have in common is facial hair! DREAM TEAM Despite the dark material, "there was a great feel on set," Scott says of working with the "incredible" Wilson and directors Matt Angel and Suzanne Coote, adding the end result is something he's proud of. "I think people will really enjoy it."

THINGS YOU DON'T KNOW ABOUT ME

BY Adam Rippon

Lutz do this! The Olympic figure skater spins out some fun facts for Us

Stars on Mars airs Mondays at 8 P.M. on Fox.

1. My first car was a used Subaru Outback and the gas pedal didn't always work. Still loved it!

2. I really like to sing in my car and can hold a few good notes. I think it's a talent that I can sing so loudly and not get into an accident.

3. I have Meryl Streep's name [saved] in my phone book in case she gives me her number.

4. I don't usually get starstruck, but the one time I was, it was when I met Hillary Clinton.

5. My matching Uniqlo sweat-pants/sweat jacket combo is my favorite wardrobe item. Sorry! There's nothing cooler than a matching sweat set!

6. My favorite book is Beautiful on the Outside by Adam Rippon. He's an incredible author and actually pretty hot.

7. Superstar is the first movie where I laughed out loud. Thank you, Molly Shannon, my comedic North Star.

8. On Saturday nights, you'll find me at home with an open bottle of Costco-brand prosecco.

9. On Sunday afternoons, you'll find me recovering from the aforementioned Costco-brand prosecco.

10. My bedroom is my favorite room because it's where the magic happens — I get to sleep.

11. A grilled cheese with ketchup is my ideal comfort food. What can I say? I'm from Pennsylvania. We love our dairy.

12. If I wasn't working in entertainment full time, I'd be a skating coach. I get to teach and work with skaters when I have free time, and I really enjoy it.

13. "Perfect Day" by Hoku brings back the best memories. I can see it now: me with my CD player, sitting on the Greyhound bus from Scranton to Philly!

14. Whenever I go to a karaoke bar, I'm always panic-searching for a song. Very unprofessional.

15. Some of my favorite TV shows are Succession, Formula 1: Drive to Survive and Growing Pains — it's like meditation.

16. To decompress after a long day, I love having dinner in front of the TV with my husband [Jussi-Pekka Kajaala] while our dog, Tony, takes his 50th nap of the day.

17. Cereal is my signature dish to make.

18. EltaMD's Tinted Sunscreen is the one beauty product I can't live without.

19. My Olympic bronze medal sits safely in its box on a shelf in my office. It's very discreet.

20. One thing I learned about myself from filming Stars on Mars is that I'm not cut out to be a real astronaut, even though I look good in the uniform.

21. I'm most proud of the moments in my career where I felt uncomfortable and nervous but was brave and pushed through.

22. My favorite Dancing With the Stars moment was meeting my partner, Jenna Johnson. She's an angel on earth.

23. I'd love to visit Lapland and see the northern lights.

24. My favorite figure skating move is the Rippon Lutz. I was the first person to do the arm variation in a jump in 2009. I feel like if you have a move named after you, it has to be your favorite.

25. My first crush was on Billy [Cranston], the Blue Power Ranger.
